

What is the program?

The Digital Games Fund offers grant funding to eligible South Australian game developers to aid in the development of digital games through to their next milestone.

The objectives of this program align with the South Australian Film Corporation (SAFC) Strategic Plan for 2025-2028:

- To assist South Australian game creators in reaching development milestones for new and upcoming games.
- To build a sustainable, long-term model of support for South Australian game creators that fosters new and innovative projects with commercial, critical, and artistic merit, fueling SA company growth and helping local teams to thrive and expand.
- To grow the number of South Australian digital game titles released each year, and to assist more teams in qualifying for the SA VGD rebate.
- To advance diverse SA game development teams, and to give them opportunities to thrive in the global games marketplace.

What is on offer?

Grants of up to $100,000 are available for digital game development teams who are looking to develop their game towards its next significant milestone, including final release.

This funding will come in the form of a one-off grant, which must be spent on the development of the game that the applicant has applied for.

Funding must help the applicants to develop their game to a significant milestone stage. The application must clearly define the stage the funding will support, and outcomes.

Depending on the amount requested, milestone stages may include:

- Prototype,
- Demo,
- Vertical slice,
- Early Access (Steam),
- Release,
- Significant post-launch content updates (i.e. new levels, new modes, new characters),
- Porting to console, PC, Mac, VR or mobile.

Who is eligible?

Applicants applying as an individual must:

- be over 18 years of age,
- possess a registered and active Australian Business Number (ABN),
- not be a full-time student,

- Digital games developed by South Australian teams (75% of the team must be primarily based in South Australia),
- Games intended for a digital release on any gaming platform (including but not limited to mobile, PC, Mac, console, VR/AR),
- Projects must involve a moderate degree of ludic interactivity (i.e. cannot be a film, player must be able to assert moderate control over proceedings. Games with light interactivity, including visual novels, are generally eligible),
- Games must be owned by the applicant (based on IP either owned or licensed by the applicant),
- Funding cannot be retrospective (i.e. it cannot cover a previous development milestone).

The following games that meet the above eligibility criteria are also eligible:

- Digital games that have already received funding from other funding bodies, e.g. Screen Australia, or Kickstarter,
- Games that have been released in Early Access through Steam (or other online stores) but are still being developed towards a 1.0 release version.

Which projects are ineligible?

- Non-digital games,
- Games designed for educational purposes only, or business-to-business products (e.g. interactive instructional tutorials, educational research projects),
- Games that are not intended for commercial release,
- Games based on external IP not owned or licensed by the applicant,
- Games by teams that primarily consist of, or are run by, currently enrolled students in game-related courses or degrees,
- Games that are deemed unlikely to receive classification within Australia,
- Remasters and upscales of existing games, or games that have already received a full retail release,
- Games developed by team members that are younger than 18 years of age.

Evaluation criteria

- The project’s originality and the team’s ability to differentiate themselves in the market from similar products,
- Diversity of the team,
- Accessibility concerns addressed,
- Both artistic and commercial prospects,
- Clear identification of market positioning,
- Proven game development record of the team (including student and amateur projects),
- The relative strength of core components presented, including visuals, storytelling, gameplay, and audio,
- Long-term achievability of the project, and the perceived likelihood of the game reaching a point of commercial release,
- Practicality and feasibility of the provided timeline and budget,
- The potential benefits of the project to the health and reputation of South Australian game development,
- Applicants that seek funding for further development or platform porting of already released games will need to demonstrate the critical commercial, and cultural success and impact of the current release.

In evaluating the project, the SAFC will consider any information and weight the above criteria as it judges appropriate to best serve the SAFC’s Strategic Objectives and the SAFC’s Diversity & Inclusion Strategy.

The SAFC is committed to accessible content and encourages applicants to consider accessible features in game design. A resource for accessible game development can be found here.

Specific assessment will be required for applications that include First Nations content.
