How will my application be assessed?

In addition to the key eligibility requirements, applications will be shortlisted for consideration based on the following assessment criteria:

- The applicant's level of experience/skill set and how these match the host company's requirements;
- The likely development benefits of the attachment to the applicant's skills and career objectives;
- The short, medium and long-term goals of the applicant and their commitment to work professionally in the area/crew role represented by the attachment;
- The applicant's demonstrated commitment to working in the South Australian screen industry and the ongoing benefit to the broader South Australian screen sector;
- How the candidate delivers on the SAFC's overall objectives of gender equality, diversity and inclusivity.

Funding is available for up to three Targeted Diversity Attachments per year. SAFC will negotiate with companies in advance to create Targeted Diversity Attachment places.

Host companies may wish to interview shortlisted applicants prior to selecting a suitable practitioner and offering an attachment.

What is on offer?

The successful applicant will be attached to a supervising crew member or Department Head who is obligated to provide appropriate tasks and supervision, creating tangible opportunities to learn, observe and assist in the relevant department. The attachment may cover more than one department.

The duration of attachments will vary and is negotiated between the SAFC and the host company prior to the call for applications.

Targeted Diversity Attachments are funded by the SAFC, at no less than the relevant industry award rate. Host companies are expected to adhere to all requirements of the Fair Work Act. The host company will deduct tax and employee entitlements before their payment.

On completion of the attachment, the successful applicant and their supervisor must each submit an acquittal report (in the form provided by SAFC).
